

Wednesday, April 8, 2020

We are coming up on what would have been our spring break. That being the case after today no new assignments will be posted until April 20th, but I am going to give you an opportunity to do some research on your own. You can do it at your own pace, it is NOT graded and I would like you to communicate your ideas, what you may have found or anything else with me. This is not required but would really like to see what you can come up with. You can email me and/or message me through the Google Classroom.

We are up to the 1960's and there were three (3) presidents during that decade, John F. Kennedy, Lyndon B. Johnson and Richard M. Nixon. I am going to suggest that pick one of the three and do some research to find the following:

1. Their political background before they became president;
2. Their presidency and what events took place during their presidency; and lastly
3. Choose the event/events that you think defined that persons presidency whether it be positive or negative and explain the impact it had on the United States up to and including today.

Your explanation could be artwork, video, poem, cartoon, story, etc. Have fun with this and in doing so you can learn a lot.

Continue to do 60 pushups per day! NOT all at once ;)
